A press-ready overview of the project at a glance.

LOGLINE

A father approaching 30 with almost no combat-sports experience begins an unscripted pursuit of championship-level MMA, learning from world-class coaches while testing whether disciplined commitment can overcome a late start.

THE CENTRAL QUESTION

Can greatness be taught—or are there limits that even the best coaching, systems, and commitment cannot overcome?

Most sports documentaries tell audiences what happened. IM|POSSIBLE begins before the result exists and captures the attempt in real time.

03 SHORT SYNOPSIS

THE STORY BEGINS BEFORE GREATNESS EXISTS.

No belt. No guaranteed ending. No retrospective certainty—only the pursuit.

At 28, entrepreneur and father Colin Dingelstad decides to stop moving from one pursuit to the next and fully commit to a single, seemingly impossible goal: becoming an MMA champion. Starting with almost no formal combat-sports experience, he enters elite systems across boxing, Brazilian Jiu-Jitsu, wrestling, Muay Thai, judo, and mixed martial arts.

Guided by former champions, world-class coaches, and respected training teams, Colin attempts to compress years of development into an intense public experiment. Every technical breakthrough, failure, injury, competition, and moment of doubt is captured as it happens.

The championship pursuit is only the surface. Beneath it is a story about fatherhood, legacy, obsession, mentorship, and the universal fear that it may already be too late to become who we could have been.

04 THE STORY

THE BEGINNING

After years of pursuing different sports, businesses, travel, and self-development, Colin recognizes a pattern: he keeps moving on before discovering his true limit. Fatherhood changes the equation. He begins asking what kind of man his son will one day see—and whether the example of a life lived with courage matters more than anything he could say.

THE MISSION

Learn from the best, test elite coaching systems in the real world, and pursue increasingly difficult competition across each discipline before bringing everything together in MMA.

THE STAKES

A late start in one of the most unforgiving athletic environments in the world. Real injuries, physical punishment, weight cuts, exhaustion, and neurological risk.

Public failure in front of coaches, competitors, cameras, and a growing audience.

The tension between ambition and fatherhood, discipline and ego, transformation and destruction.

An ending that remains completely unknown.

"WHAT BECOMES POSSIBLE WHEN YOU STOP STARTING OVER?"

The title pursuit is the experiment. The deeper story is the person created by the attempt.

05 THE MAIN CHARACTER

COLIN DINGELSTAD

Creator • Originator • Athlete • Father

Colin is not a lifelong fighter or decorated martial artist. He is an entrepreneur and late-start beginner who spent years testing himself through business, travel, endurance, strength training, and constant reinvention—but never stayed with one pursuit long enough to discover his full potential.

At 28, he commits to the most demanding experiment of his life. The goal is not simply to win fights. It is to consciously rebuild himself through hardship and become the kind of father who leads through action.

The camera follows the physical transformation and the evolution of his identity as he confronts fear, humiliation, obsession, responsibility, and the possibility that hard work may still not be enough.

KEY FIGURES & CREATIVE TEAM

Experienced filmmakers, former champions, respected coaches, and elite training partners are attached across direction, cinematography, editorial, performance, and story development.

 RICCO RODRIGUEZ TRAINER & FEATURED MENTOR Former UFC Heavyweight Champion providing championship-level evaluation, experience, credibility, and combat-sports access.	 COLIN DINGELSTAD CREATOR & SUBJECT Originator and athlete behind the real-time experiment, pursuing championship-level MMA through elite coaching and full commitment.	 MATT COHEN DIRECTOR Hollywood producer and director with experience developing and producing feature films, documentaries, and television.
 VI ANGELI LANOT & TEAM EDITORIAL & NARRATIVE Editorial leadership shaping the evolving long-form narrative, digital storytelling, color, sound, and post-production.	 SIMON RUBENSTEIN LEAD CINEMATOGRAPHER & CO-PRODUCER Producer, director, and cinematographer with collaborations across major entertainment, studio, and broadcast productions.	 MARTIN SNOW BOXING COACH Former heavyweight Golden Gloves champion and founder of Trinity Boxing Club, bringing elite boxing experience and mentorship.

THE JOURNEY

A transformation built through real tests, not symbolic training.

01 THE DECISION Stop starting over. Commit fully. Put the central question to the test.	02 EVALUATION Former UFC Heavyweight Champion Ricco Rodriguez assesses whether the ambition is physically and technically possible.	03 JIU-JITSU Test how far a white belt can progress toward black-belt-level performance through accelerated elite training.	04 BOXING Enter a serious training camp with the objective of a real boxing competition.
05 MUAY THAI Immerse in Thailand's combat culture and prepare for a genuine fight under traditional systems.	06 WRESTLING + JUDO Build the control, takedowns, balance, and pressure required to make the disciplines work together.	07 THE MERGE Combine striking and grappling under MMA pressure, where every weakness can be exposed.	08 THE ULTIMATE TEST Step into real amateur and professional competition and discover what the transformation has actually built.

08 WHY THIS STORY MATTERS

UNDERNEATH THE FIGHTING IS A UNIVERSAL FEAR: "AM I TOO LATE?"

Too late to change. Too late to commit. Too late to become the person you hoped you could be.

FATHERHOOD + LEGACY

At the end of the day, one of the most powerful things a father can be is an example. The series asks what it means to model courage, responsibility, discipline, and meaningful ambition for the next generation.

HUMAN POTENTIAL

The project tests whether extraordinary development can be engineered through world-class mentorship, intelligent systems, sustained practice, and full commitment.

MENTORSHIP

Every coach represents a different philosophy of excellence: practice over talent, systems over instinct, discipline over genetics, calmness over fear. Their methods become rooted pillars of the transformation.

THE COST OF GREATNESS

The series refuses to turn ambition into empty motivation. It openly explores injury, brain trauma, obsession, isolation, family strain, public failure, and the moment the pursuit of greatness may become self-destruction.

09 AUDIENCE & CULTURAL IMPACT

Combat sports provide a passionate global foundation, but the emotional message reaches far beyond MMA. The story is built for anyone who has questioned whether it is too late to change, pursue a meaningful goal, or become the example they want others to follow.

CORE AUDIENCES

MMA, UFC, boxing, Jiu-Jitsu, wrestling, Muay Thai, and combat-sports fans
Sports-documentary and character-driven nonfiction viewers
Fitness, recovery, performance, and training communities

11 MOMENTUM & RECOGNITION

EARLY TRACTION

108,000+ views in the first three weeks of posting from a previously dormant account.

Balanced male and female reach, with the strongest segment between ages 25 and 44.

Early audience concentration in the United States, particularly New York and Los Angeles.

Promotional footage premiered before an industry audience in Los Angeles.

PRODUCTION MOMENTUM

20+ filming days completed.

More than 8TB of cinematic footage captured.

The story is being documented continuously rather than reconstructed later.

NOTABLE INVOLVEMENT

Former UFC Heavyweight Champion Ricco Rodriguez attached as trainer and featured mentor.

Hollywood producer and director Matt Cohen attached as director.

Simon Rubenstein attached as lead cinematographer and co-producer.

Vi Angeli Lanot and her editorial team shaping narrative and post-production.

Martin Snow, Bobby Gambita, AMG Miami, the Sainz Brothers, Trinity Boxing Club, and GT Gym HQ involved across training and production.

Press coverage, interviews, and podcast appearances will be added to the media kit as they are published.

12 DISTRIBUTION & RELEASE STRATEGY

The project is being developed through multiple release pathways rather than relying on a single platform. The strategy combines real-time digital audience growth, a carefully sequenced festival campaign, streaming acquisition discussions, television licensing, and international distribution.

DISTRIBUTION POSITION

TriCoast Worldwide: A formal Letter of Intent supports future distribution efforts following completion, subject to the terms of the LOI.

Streaming targets: Netflix, Amazon Prime Video, Apple TV+, Hulu, Roku, Tubi, and additional international outlets.

Additional pathways: International television, airline entertainment, transactional digital platforms, educational licensing, and long-tail distribution.

FESTIVAL STRATEGY

Protect premiere eligibility by submitting top-tier opportunities first.

Target prestige documentary festivals, sports-focused festivals, combat-sports festivals, and industry-dense New York and Los Angeles programs.

Priority targets include Sundance, Big Sky, DC/DOX, DOC NYC, Slamdance, AFI FEST, NYU Sports Film Festival, and FICTS World Challenge.

Use screenings, Q&As, and festival attendance to generate press and distribution conversations.

Target platforms and festivals are prospective and not confirmed unless expressly stated. Festival eligibility and dates will be verified before submission.

13 TONE & VISUAL LANGUAGE

CINEMATIC. INTIMATE. PHILOSOPHICAL. BRUTAL.

The camera stays close enough to feel the fear, exhaustion, silence, loneliness, doubt, and smallest breakthroughs.

CREATIVE APPROACH

Real-time observational filmmaking rather than retrospective reconstruction.
Premium cinema imagery balanced with raw, unguarded moments.
Training is used as a doorway into questions of identity, fear, mentorship, and sacrifice.
Competition is filmed as psychological consequence—not simply spectacle.
Emotional honesty takes priority over manufactured inspiration.

COMPARABLE AUDIENCE DNA

Free Solo: real risk and obsession under pressure.
14 Peaks: seemingly impossible physical ambition.
The Last Dance: elite-performance psychology and legacy.
Chef's Table: mastery, mentorship, and cinematic craft.
The Wrestler / Warrior / Rocky: identity, sacrifice, family, and the emotional meaning of fighting.

These references describe tone and audience alignment only; IM|POSSIBLE is an original nonfiction property.

14 PRESS ANGLES & INTERVIEW TOPICS

EDITORIAL STORY ANGLES

Can elite coaching compress decades of athletic development?

Why most sports documentaries begin after success—and what changes when the ending is unknown.

The late-starter experiment: talent, age, technique, and human adaptability.

Fatherhood as action: what it means to become a role model in the real world.

Where discipline ends and obsession begins.

The neurological and emotional cost of combat sports.

How different cultures build fighters across boxing, wrestling, Jiu-Jitsu, Muay Thai, judo, and MMA.

AVAILABLE INTERVIEW SUBJECTS

Colin Dingelstad: origin of the experiment, fatherhood, late-start transformation, training, and real-time uncertainty.

Matt Cohen: directorial vision, story structure, cinematic approach, and documenting an unfinished outcome.

Ricco Rodriguez: championship mindset, initial evaluation, MMA development, and whether the goal is possible.

Martin Snow / Bobby Gambita: boxing development, fear, technical gaps, and the psychology of being hit.

Simon Rubenstein / Vi Angeli Lanot: visual language, editing an evolving story, and protecting authenticity.
