

IMPOSSIBLE

A REAL-TIME DOCUMENTARY SERIES

Hidden in plain sight. I'm possible.

A father approaching 30 begins an unscripted pursuit of an MMA championship, learning from world-class coaches while testing whether greatness can be taught.

PARTNERSHIP OVERVIEW

02 THE JOURNEY IS HAPPENING NOW

MOST DOCUMENTARIES TELL YOU WHAT HAPPENED. THIS ONE IS HAPPENING RIGHT NOW.

Follow Colin's pursuit in real time—from first evaluation to real competition—with no scripted outcome and no guaranteed ending.

THE PREMISE

At 28, with almost no combat-sports experience, Colin Dingelstad commits to learning boxing, wrestling, Brazilian Jiu-Jitsu, Muay Thai, judo, and MMA from elite coaches around the world. The ultimate ambition: become an MMA champion and test how far disciplined effort, intelligent systems, and world-class mentorship can take a late starter.

Watch the official trailer and follow the first chapters of production at:

impossibledocumentary.com

The audience does not know whether Colin will succeed, fail, adapt, or discover a limit that cannot be overcome. That uncertainty is the engine of the story.

03 EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

WHAT IT IS

IM|POSSIBLE is an eight-part real-time documentary series following a father approaching 30 as he attempts one of the hardest transformations in professional sports: progressing from a late-start beginner toward championship-level MMA.

CORE MISSION

To test whether greatness can be taught—and to show that a parent's most powerful lesson is the life they model through action.

WHY NOW

The story begins before the result exists. Every breakthrough, injury, fight, doubt, and consequence is being captured as it happens.

CURRENT STATUS

Active production: approximately 10% of the planned journey captured as of July 2026.

20+ filming days: continuous training supported by scheduled production blocks.

8TB+ footage: captured through a professional cinema workflow built for premium streaming delivery.

Team attached: Matt Cohen, Simon Rubenstein, Vi Angeli Lanot and team, Ricco Rodriguez, Martin Snow, and additional combat-sports partners.

Early traction: 108,000+ views in the first three weeks from a previously dormant account.

Distribution: formal Letter of Intent from TriCoast Worldwide supporting future distribution efforts upon completion.

Financing: independently financed to date; strategic partners are now being selected to expand production.

04 THE CORE MISSION

CAN GREATNESS BE TAUGHT?

Or are there limits that even the best coaching, systems, intelligence, and commitment cannot overcome?

The series places a late-start beginner inside elite combat-sports systems and turns the body, mind, and identity into the experiment. Each discipline tests a different part of the question: technique versus talent, systems versus instinct, discipline versus genetics, and ambition versus reality.

THE PUBLIC MISSION

Challenge the idea that meaningful transformation is reserved for the naturally gifted.

Show what intelligent, sustained commitment looks like in the real world—not as theory or motivational content.

Give viewers permission to begin before they feel ready and stay long enough to discover their actual limits.

THE PERSONAL MISSION

Lead by example for Colin's son rather than relying on words alone.

Build a legacy around courage, responsibility, and the willingness to fully test one's potential.

Create a story the next generation can use when facing its own seemingly impossible challenges.

05 THE STORY

THE PREMISE

Colin Dingelstad is not a lifelong fighter. He is an entrepreneur and father who spent years moving between sports, businesses, travel, and reinvention without discovering how far he could go in one pursuit. At 28, he chooses to stop starting over.

He enters world-class boxing gyms, elite grappling rooms, wrestling systems, traditional Muay Thai camps, and ultimately real fights—compressing years of development into an intense, public experiment.

THE MAIN CHARACTER

Starting point: almost no formal combat-sports experience.

Identity: father, entrepreneur, late-start beginner, and willing test subject.

Motivation: discover his limits and become a living example for his son.

Conflict: ambition versus responsibility; discipline versus ego; transformation versus destruction.

Outcome: unknown. The audience experiences it in real time.

"WHAT BECOMES POSSIBLE WHEN YOU STOP STARTING OVER?"

The championship pursuit is the vehicle. The deeper story is conscious transformation.

06 WHY IT IS DIFFERENT

THE STORY BEGINS BEFORE GREATNESS EXISTS

Most sports documentaries begin with a champion and then retrace the path to success. IM|POSSIBLE begins before the story is written. There is no belt, no predetermined ending, and no guarantee that the central premise will prove true.

The audience watches the attempt—not the aftermath. Every setback, injury, technical breakthrough, competition, and moment of doubt carries weight because the result is still undecided.

Rare access to elite coaches and champions turns the series into both an emotional story and an inside look at how excellence is actually built.

THE STAKES ARE REAL

Real amateur and professional competition—not exhibitions or scripted outcomes.

Injury, concussion, neurological risk, exhaustion, and accumulated physical damage.

Public humiliation and the possibility that the dream fails in front of the audience.

The pressure of balancing fatherhood, relationships, identity, finances, and total commitment.

The possibility that the pursuit of greatness becomes destructive.

The question evolves from “Can he do it?” to “What will it cost—and is the cost worth paying?”

07 THE JOURNEY

A staged transformation with a real test at the end of every chapter.

1 EVALUATION Ricco Rodriguez assesses whether the ambition is physically and competitively plausible.	2 JIU-JITSU Accelerated white-belt-to-advanced-level experiment, tested against legitimate competitors.
3 BOXING Elite instruction, hard sparring, licensing, and a real boxing fight as the final test.	4 MUAY THAI Immersion in Thailand’s training culture, culminating in a real stadium-style bout.
5 WRESTLING + JUDO Pressure, control, takedowns, adaptation, and competition against experienced grapplers.	6 THE MERGE Boxing, Muay Thai, wrestling, judo, and Jiu-Jitsu integrated for the first MMA fight.
7 THE COST Injury, recovery, fatherhood, obsession, brain health, and the price of sustained ambition.	8 PROGRESSION Amateur fights, professional debut, regional competition, and the long road toward championship contention.

08 PROJECT FORMAT

PRIMARY FORMAT

An eight-part episodic documentary series following the journey from initial evaluation through real combat-sports competition and professional progression.

FESTIVAL FORMAT

A feature-length festival cut is planned to support prestige festival submissions, industry exposure, and acquisition conversations.

DIGITAL ECOSYSTEM

Ongoing short-form and long-form digital content lets audiences follow the story during production, creating reach and partner value before release.

PRODUCTION MODEL

Story model: unscripted, real time, and outcome unknown.

Filming: continuous capture supported by scheduled blocks based on camera-team and coach availability.

Primary language: English, with international subtitle and localization opportunities.

Locations: United States, Mexico, Thailand, and additional global training destinations.

Release model: streaming, festivals, television, digital platforms, and long-tail licensing.

Final episode runtimes, delivery specifications, and release timing will be locked with production and distribution partners.

11 AUDIENCE & MARKET

IM|POSSIBLE sits at the intersection of two powerful viewing behaviors: the global passion surrounding combat sports and the growing appetite for character-driven sports documentaries. The fighting creates a highly engaged core audience; the universal story of fatherhood, purpose, reinvention, and human potential allows the project to travel far beyond it.

PRIMARY AUDIENCES

Combat-sports fans: MMA, boxing, Jiu-Jitsu, wrestling, Muay Thai, judo, training culture, and elite performance.

Documentary viewers: audiences drawn to real stakes, transformation, and intimate access.

Personal-growth audience: entrepreneurs, athletes, parents, students, and professionals pursuing difficult goals.

Mainstream viewers: people who connect with legacy, fear of starting late, and the responsibility to lead by example.

GLOBAL MARKET SIGNALS

UFC footprint: official UFC/TKO materials describe reach across an estimated 1 billion households in 210 countries and territories.

Sports-documentary demand: Nielsen reported 12.4 billion U.S. streaming minutes for sports documentaries in 2025, up from 4.7 billion in 2021.

Cross-cultural appeal: training systems, locations, coaches, and competitions create built-in international storytelling.

Multi-platform fit: streaming, television, social media, festivals, and live-event content extend the audience lifecycle.

WHY THIS MATTERS TO PARTNERS

The early audience is aspirational, digitally engaged, and aligned with categories that help people train, recover, travel, create, perform, and build better lives. It combines the intensity of a combat-sports niche with the broader emotional reach of a story about becoming the example you want the next generation to see.

13 MOMENTUM & VALIDATION

AUDIENCE MOMENTUM

108,000+ early views in the first three weeks of posting.
Strong 25–44 audience concentration and balanced male/female reach.
Ongoing social storytelling builds awareness before the series is complete.

PRODUCTION MOMENTUM

Official trailer completed and released.
20+ filming days and 8TB+ of footage captured.
Continuous real-time filming across training and production blocks.

INDUSTRY VALIDATION

Former UFC Heavyweight Champion Ricco Rodriguez officially attached.
Award-winning film and editorial leadership attached across direction, cinematography, and post-production.
Training access and partnerships with AMG Miami, Trinity Boxing Club, GT Gym HQ, the Sainz Brothers, Bobby Gambita, and additional elite coaches.

DISTRIBUTION VALIDATION

Formal Letter of Intent from TriCoast Worldwide.
Tiered festival strategy developed to protect premiere eligibility and maximize industry exposure.
Streaming, television, digital, airline, and international licensing pathways identified.

14 DISTRIBUTION STRATEGY

A multi-stage release strategy is designed to build audience, protect festival opportunities, create acquisition conversations, and generate long-term value across multiple platforms.

1	2	3	4
DIGITAL-FIRST GROWTH	FESTIVAL LAUNCH	DISTRIBUTION + ACQUISITION	GLOBAL + LONG-TAIL
Build the community throughout production through early cuts, training updates, interviews, and behind-the-scenes storytelling.	Pursue prestige, sports-specific, documentary, and combat-sports festivals while protecting premiere status.	Use the completed series, festival exposure, audience proof, and TriCoast LOI to pursue streaming and television opportunities.	Extend through international broadcasters, transactional platforms, airlines, educational licensing, and ongoing digital content.

TARGET + PROSPECTIVE PLATFORMS

Netflix • Amazon Prime Video • Apple TV+ • Hulu • Roku • Tubi • International streaming and broadcast outlets

Target platforms are prospective and not represented as confirmed. The TriCoast Worldwide LOI supports future distribution efforts upon completion, subject to its terms and subsequent agreements.

15 FESTIVAL & RELEASE STRATEGY

Festival submission is sequenced—not “spray and pray.” Premiere status is protected by taking the highest-upside opportunities first, followed by strong sports, combat-sports, New York, and Los Angeles targets.

TIERED APPROACH

Tier 1 — Prestige: Sundance, Big Sky Documentary Film Festival, DC/DOX, Sebastopol Documentary Film Festival.

Tier 2 — Sports: NYU Sports Film Festival, International Sport Film Festival, Houston International Sports Film Festival, FICTS World Challenge.

Tier 3 — Combat sports: US Martial Arts Film Festival and Universal Martial Arts Film Festival.

Tier 4/5 — Industry cities: DOC NYC, New York Documentary Film Festival, Slamdance, AFI FEST, and DOC LA.

ORDER OF OPERATIONS

Lock the festival cut, trailer, one-page EPK, stills, synopsis, and biographies.

Submit prestige opportunities before public exhibition where premiere eligibility matters.

Open sports-specific and combat-sports submissions after the top-tier window.

Use New York and Los Angeles festivals for press, Q&As, networking, and distribution conversations.

Attend accepted festivals in person whenever possible.

The strategy is updated annually because deadlines, rules, and premiere requirements change. Festival websites and FilmFreeway remain the source of truth before submission.

16 WHY BRANDS BELONG IN THE STORY

THIS IS NOT TRADITIONAL ADVERTISING.

Partners can become part of the systems, tools, travel, training, recovery, and technology that make the transformation possible.

AUTHENTIC CONTEXT

Products are used in real training, travel, recovery, production, and competition environments.

The audience sees what the brand enables—not simply a logo inserted into a scene.

Long-term storytelling allows trust and association to build over time.

ALIGNMENT

Resilience, ambition, discipline, purpose, and human potential.

A core combat-sports audience plus a broader audience built around legacy and transformation.

Continuous exposure across production, digital content, fights, festivals, press, and release.

A partner is not asked to sponsor “an MMA documentary.” The opportunity is to support a global transformation story with a passionate built-in niche and the potential to break into the mainstream.

17 SPONSORSHIP OPPORTUNITIES

PRESENTING PARTNER “IM|POSSIBLE presented by...”

The highest level of association across the series, website, credits, digital content, press, premieres, and selected brand activations.

OFFICIAL CATEGORY PARTNER Official partner within a defined industry

Exclusive or preferred integration across the production—for example apparel, recovery, travel, technology, or nutrition.

EPISODE PARTNER Own a natural chapter of the journey

Alignment with a specific discipline, destination, challenge, or fight through relevant integration and content.

PRODUCT + EQUIPMENT PARTNER Put the product inside the real work

Cash and/or in-kind support through authentic use in training, filming, travel, recovery, or competition.

CONTENT + MEDIA PARTNER Extend the story beyond the series

Co-created digital content, licensed assets, interviews, podcasts, editorial collaborations, and joint campaigns.

Every partnership is customized around the brand's objectives, category, budget, target audience, rights needs, activation calendar, and level of integration.

20 ACTIVATION, MEASUREMENT & RIGHTS

PARTNER ACTIVATION TIMELINE

Production: product integration, training-camp content, behind-the-scenes storytelling, and website recognition.

Competition: fight-week content, event access, athlete/coach storytelling, and selected activations.

Festival + press: screenings, VIP access, interviews, joint announcements, and approved co-branded assets.

Release + long-tail: documentary credits, licensed content, social amplification, and continuing platform exposure.

MEASUREMENT

Views, reach, watch time, completion, and engagement

Audience age, gender, and geography where available

Delivered content and campaign milestones

Link, code, or conversion activity where implemented

Press, festival, event, and screening exposure

RIGHTS + BRAND SAFETY

Approved footage and stills may be licensed by term, territory, channel, and intended use.

Sponsors receive approval over accurate brand representation—not control over the documentary’s editorial conclusion.

Integrations must support the story and comply with legal, claims, athlete, location, distributor, and platform requirements.

Final placement cannot be guaranteed where a distributor, platform, or editorial decision requires change.

Category exclusivity is specifically defined and does not extend beyond the written agreement.

AUTHENTICITY IS THE VALUE.

The brand should help make the journey possible without compromising the truth of what happens.

21

WHAT PARTNERSHIP MAKES POSSIBLE

Partner support directly expands the quality, safety, ambition, and global scale of the production.

WORLD-CLASS COACHING Access to elite systems, trainers, camps, specialists, and competitive environments.	GLOBAL PRODUCTION Travel, accommodation, location access, visas, logistics, and international filming.	CINEMATIC EXECUTION Cinematography, sound, production crews, data management, and behind-the-scenes capture.
ATHLETE SAFETY Medical testing, sports medicine, diagnostics, recovery, rehabilitation, and insurance.	POST-PRODUCTION Editing, story development, music, color, sound mix, graphics, subtitles, and delivery.	AUDIENCE + RELEASE Publicity, social distribution, festival submissions, attendance, sales materials, and global release preparation.

The objective is not simply to finance more footage. It is to create the conditions required to test the central question honestly, safely, and at a level worthy of a global audience.

22 MEDIA ASSETS & NEXT STEP

AVAILABLE ASSETS

- Official trailer and approved teaser clips
- Curated high-resolution production stills and behind-the-scenes photography
- Primary, light, dark, transparent, and vector logo files
- Project synopsis, logline, team biographies, and production facts
- Press materials, social links, and approved partnership imagery
- Brand usage guidance and co-branded creative support

Use a curated selection of 8–12 exceptional images in the deck. The full approved image library should live in a separate downloadable media folder rather than inside the PDF.
